TO

JEFF TOMKO, NEWS EDITOR

We've been enjoying the World Cup quite a bit here at Metro and now the tournament gets really good. Eight teams remain — with even more stars and storylines — in this weekend's semifinals. And with soccer's A-listers Messi and Ronaldo in the tournament's rearview, many heavy hitters — Suarez, Kane, Lukaku, and of course Neymar — still remain. And then there's Igor Akinfeev, the Russian goalie most fans hadn't heard of until his crazy foot-save last week helped the underdogs to an improbable march to the semis. Yeah, we're gonna enjoy this weekend.

WELCOME TO METRO.US

CROATIA EXPECTS RUSSIA TO PLAY ABOVE THEMSELVES

Backed by a partisan crowd, Russia will play above themselves in their World Cup quarter-final against Croatia but Zlatko Dalić's men will have the answers ready for the challenge posed by the hosts, Goalkeeper Danijel Subasic said.

Having won all of their Group D games, Croatia beat Denmark in a shootout in their last 16 clash to set up a quarter-final against Russia on Saturday in Sochi on the Black Sea coast.

Russia took a similar route to the last eight with a win on penalties over Spain in the Round of 16.

"It'll certainly be a hard game, they play at home, they'll have the fans backing them," Subasic, Croatia's hero in the win against Denmark, told reporters through a translator.

GETTY IMAGES

"They're a good team, they play well and of course it'll be hard as each time so far. Then again, the challenge is that much greater when everything is against you."

Subasic made three saves in their 3-2 shootout win — only the second keeper to do so in World Cup history after Portugal's Ricardo versus England in 2006.

Russia played with five at the back and a lone striker in Artem Dzyuba against Spain and it worked as their opponents managed to create just one chance in 90 minutes on Sunday.

It might not be the same against Croatia with the Balkan nation having shown flashes of their stellar attacking game when they beat Nigeria, Argentina and Iceland.

"I don't know, they're playing at home, I suppose they should attack us. I don't know how they'll play, I'm not their coach," Subasic said. "They have a good squad, good individuals ... [it will be] a game as difficult as any other."

"It's certain they'll go beyond their abilities, playing at home, in front of their fans. I think we have the answers to all that's waiting for us."

ENGLAND FINDS A NEW CALMNESS TO BANISH THE WORLD CUP HOODOO

As captain Harry Kane walked away from the celebrating England fans after his team's heart-stopping World Cup penalty shootout win over Colombia on Tuesday he looked so relaxed he could have been strolling to the corner shop for a bottle of milk.

Then it all dawned on him. Kane's face broke, his eyes closed shut in total relief and he looked to the heavens, mouthing his gratitude for the end of his team's horrendous run of defeats in major tournament shootouts.

The skipper and his team mates had kept their cool when it mattered most — for 120 minutes of a tense and tetchy game played at a Spartak Stadium which resembled Bogota given the dominance of Colombia's passionate supporters.

England, none more so than Kane who had put them in the lead from the penalty spot in the 57th minute, held their nerve at the decisive turning-points in an intense match, showing an unexpected maturity for the youngest team left in the tournament.

They avoided losing their heads during moments of provocation from the Colombians and periods when American referee Mark Geiger lost control of the game. Crucially, they were able to stand up and fight on after the punch in the gut that came with Yerry Mina's stoppage-time equalizer.

And then, facing the shootout test that has proved too much for England teams for so long, they kept their emotions in check, put history out of mind and focused on the task in hand.

The history weighed heavily — England had the worst senior shootout record in world football, losing on penalties in World Cups in 1990, 1998 and 2006, and at the European Championship in 1996, 2004 and 2012. All that had to be banished from their minds.

Kane was handed the task of opening the trial for Gareth Southgate's side and he unflinchingly passed the test.

Marcus Rashford also converted his penalty and after Jordan Henderson's effort was saved, the Tottenham Hotspur pair of Kieran Trippier and Eric Dier stepped up to beat David Ospina while Colombia's final two penalty-takers fluffed their lines.

Victory secured, the calmness vanished immediately.

The waist-coated Southgate, whose quiet confidence and tranquil air have set the tone for this side, almost collapsed as his knees buckled the very moment Dier squeezed the ball past the touch of Ospina and into the corner of the net. Southgate's assistants caught his fall and his face told his own story.

Southgate deserves a large share of the credit for the breaking of the hoodoo. Since March, the man who missed the decisive kick in the Euro 96 semifinal against Germany, has made sure his team prepared for this very outcome.

The 47-year-old has been smart enough to realize that while pundits may dismiss the shootout as a lottery, it is in fact a supreme test of nerve and skill.

An estimated 300 immigrant children who were separated from their families at the southern border being sheltered in New York.

With an estimated 300 immigrant children who were separated from their families at the southern border being sheltered in New York, city officials Tuesday unveiled a slew of services aimed to help them acclimate.

Max Zahniser

The majority of the immigrant children, who range in age from infants to teenagers, are in foster homes across the city, where they are receiving education, recreation and health care services during the day, and city agencies are now offering mental health care, trauma training for foster parents and staff working with the kids, legal help, recreational activities and more.

The immigrant children are “resilient, but they’re also frightened, confused and, in some cases, clearly traumatized,” said David A. Hansell, commissioner of the Administration for Children’s Services. “While these children are under the care and legal responsibility of the federal government, they are in New York City now, and we are doing everything in our power to make sure they are safe and healthy.”

In addition to the aforementioned services, the agencies will also provide parenting coaching for teen moms who are with infants, weekly field trips to zoos, museums and other city educational and cultural institutions, increased NYPD security at the day facilities and during transportation from the centers to their foster homes and toys and art supplies.

Be sure to wear sunblock if you're going on a long summer drive because your left side is more susceptible to burn from cancer-causing UVB rays. ISTOCK

With summer fun comes summer fear

From UTIs to “dry drowning,” a health expert talks to us about six summer conditions to be aware of.

cer in a human? We really don't yet.”

Dry drowning is a thing We've heard of drowning and near-drowning but there's also dry drowning, which is usually more of a problem with kids.

“It's if a child gets water in their mouth like if they're talking and laughing in a pool and they aspirate it, sucking it into their upper airwaves, voice box and larynx,” Finkleston explained. “They'll probably cough and that whole reaction causes inflammation spasms, which you can't control. That's how it's dry, you're not necessarily submerged in water; you've aspirated a little bit of it. Be aware of it and know what to look for — coughing, labored breathing, kids will look lethargic all of a sudden. They should go directly to the ER.”

Pack a medicine kit If you're heading far from a doctor or where you can't access internet to use a telemedicine service like LiveHealth online, be proactive and pack a medicine kit.

“Include antihistamine, something for inflammation, something anesthetic that could soothe or numb, a hydrocortisone cream to help with itching and Band-Aids, of course,” she said.

Yes, you can get sunburn on your eyes “Look at the iris of your eye, it's skin, so it's susceptible to burns,” Finkleston said. “Brown-eyed people don't need to worry as much, but light-eyed people need a sunscreen or glasses for that protection from UVA and UVB rays. You can get melanoma in that area. It is serious.”

Slap on sunscreen for that long summer drive Your car's windshield likely has standard protection against cancer-causing UVB rays, “but your side windows don't, and your left side is more susceptible,” Finkleston said. “Wear sunblock if you're going to be in the car for a while.”

NIKKI M. MASCALI

Beach Boys co-founder Brian Wilson once said, “Summer means happy times and good sunshine.” While we sure won't argue with that, summer does come with some serious health concerns.

We asked Dr. Mia Finkleston, a family physician who sees patients via telehealth app LiveHealth Online, for things to keep in mind as we're enjoying summer Fridays.

“Enjoy your barbecue but don't do it every night of the week in the summer.”

Dr. Mia Finkleston

Finkleston operates in 23 states, mostly along the East Coast and the top two issues she sees this time of year is tied between UTIs in women and skin rashes, “which incorporates everything like poison ivy, bug bites and sunburn as the biggest ones.”

Why UTIs ramp up in summer To avoid, be sure to stay hydrated and get out of your wet swimsuits and sweat-soaked gym clothes stat.

Cookout carcinogens Grilled meats can be risky, too, thanks to smoke chemicals called Polycyclic Aromatic Hydrocarbons (PAH), which may transfer carcinogens into the meat.

“They are harmful to your health, and they're in cigarette smoke, exhaust fumes, and we know they're not good for you,” Finkleston said. “But the real question is: Do we know how much it takes to potentially cause can-

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated ) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Eric Trump runs into city traffic to help woman who collapsed

"I'm especially grateful to the EMTs who took over," the 34-year-old New Yorker said. "It was certainly my first time hailing an ambulance in New York City."

NIKKI M. MASCALI

A woman who collapsed on a Midtown sidewalk last week found help from an unlikely source: Eric Trump, the middle son of President Donald Trump.

Eric Trump, 34, and his security team were in the vicinity of the F train subway station near 57th Street and Sixth Avenue, not too far from Trump Tower, on June 27 when they stopped to help a woman who had passed out, a source who requested anonymity told the Washington Examiner on Monday.

The eyewitness told the publication that Trump saw an ambulance driving by on Sixth Avenue and then "ran into traffic — almost getting hit by a bicyclist — and shouted at the ambulance to get its attention."

The responders administered aid to the unidentified woman, the tipster said, though it was unknown if they were from the ambulance Trump flagged down or if another had been called. Trump and his security team left after the paramedics arrived.

"I don't know if anyone really noticed all of this going on, there wasn't a crowd of people watching," they added.

Trump later downplayed his heroics to the Washington Examiner, saying, "I'm glad we were able to play a small role in getting help for the woman on 58th Street. We just happened to be in the right place at the right time," he said. "I'm especially grateful to the EMTs who took over. It was certainly my first time hailing an ambulance in New York City."

HERD STOPPERS

My biggest pet peeve is the commuter who randomly stops while in the midst of a herd of people who either just got off a train or that are trying to make their train. I wonder what are these people thinking? Did they suddenly realize they are going the wrong direction? Did they forget to stop and get their morning coffee? Either way, it's 1. RUDE! and, 2. DANGEROUS! Several times I've come within inches from running into someone because they stopped cold. Thank goodness my reflexes are still sharp. A bloody nose on the way into work is not the fashion look I'm going for. Please be mindful when walking in a group of people because it's likely someone is only a few inches behind you. Move safely to the outside of the herd and step outside of it before stopping (be careful because that in itself can be a feat!). Your fellow commuter's face thanks you.

The Wasp joins Ant-Man in the new Marvel sequel.

Ant-Man and the Wasp will have a showdown with a new villain dubbed the Ghost.

'Ant-Man and the Wasp' is really a 'Civil War' sequel

Director Peyton Reed opens up about helming Marvel's latest blockbuster.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

While the chance to direct 2015's "Ant-Man" was the highlight of Peyton Reed's career, the sudden departure of Edgar Wright meant he was actually only given a year to work on the blockbuster. You couldn't tell from the end result, as "Ant-Man" was still met with critical acclaim and took in the solid sum of $519.3 million.

That gross meant Reed was always going to return for the sequel. But this time around he would have three years to develop and evolve his plans for Paul Rudd's Ant-Man, Evangeline Lily's Wasp, Michael Douglas' Hank Pym and, most important, Michael Pena's Luis. We chatted with Reed about his work on "Ant-Man and The Wasp," the 20th installment to the seemingly ever-growing Marvel Cinematic Universe.

After the rush of the first film, how did it feel to have more time to work on "Ant-Man and the Wasp"?

Marvel's first female Avenger finally gets her due

"It's about damn time," Hope van Dyne (Evangeline Lilly) cracked when her scientist father gifted her with a super suit at the end of 2015's "Ant-Man." She was talking about her character's impatience to get in on the action, but the line was also a sly nod to Marvel's lack of leading female heroes. And perhaps no female has been more inexplicably missing from the multiplex than the Wasp. After all, she was one of the founding members of the Marvel Universe in the comics helping to form the Avengers.

Despite her cachet, the Wasp has been mostly absent from the big screen. Until now, that is. The bug-size heroine finally gets her due in Friday's "Ant-Man and the Wasp." The Wasp and partner

(Paul Rudd) team up and use their size-shifting abilities to battle a mysterious new villain. The storyline represents a slight shift from the character's four-color origins. The Wasp debuted in a 1963 issue of Marvel's "Tales to Astonish." She was Janet van Dyne, a socialite who is given powers by the original Ant-Man. In a nod to her origin, the movie's Wasp is the daughter of Janet.

When the Marvel Cinematic Universe began, starting with 2008's "Iron Man," the Wasp kept getting swatted away. Joss Whedon, who wrote and directed 2012's "The Avengers," penned an early draft of the film that included her, but she was dropped as the script felt, "too Wasp-y," Whedon revealed in 2012.

A bit late maybe, but she's now arrived, becoming the first Marvel heroine to receive title billing. Considering her importance in Marvel history, if there's a sequel, they may want to call it "The Wasp and Ant-Man."

REED TUCKER

This feels more like a love-letter to San Francisco, too.

Both movies take place in San Francisco. With this movie I really wanted to take it out into the city more. Feature more of the action and visuals there, really make the city more of a character. We designed this set of sequences in the back half of the movie that really were very, very specific to San Francisco. A chase that uses specific geography and landmarks of the city.

Talk about playing off other Marvel films, especially following "Infinity War."

We obviously always knew we were coming out after "Infinity War," and we also knew how "Infinity War" ended. But, our movie, weirdly, is not only a sequel to "Ant-Man" but to "Civil War." We could not ignore what Scott Lang does in "Civil War," which was a really good jumping off point. But what's great is that this movie was really encouraged to be its own movie and its own tone.

"Ant-Man and the Wasp" is released July 6.

It was nice to have considerably more development time and prep time on this movie. Also, I don't think it hurt going in having dealt with those characters in the first movie, knowing those characters, being familiar with the actors and all, that was a nicer way to come into this movie than the first time. What that allowed us to do really was take things that we had really built on in the first movie, in terms of the very specific tone of this movie, and really kind of take any intimacy that we had in the first movie but really kind of blow it out in terms of the visuals and all of that stuff.

It goes from feeling like an out-and-out comedy to a huge tentpole movie.

The "Ant-Man and the Wasp" universe is inherently comedic, with big stakes and everything, too. But what is at the core of the "Ant-Man" movies is this intimate family story about fathers and daughters. Whether they are literal fathers and daughters, like Hank and Hope and Scott and Cassie. And then there's a more metaphorical father and daughter relationship, too. As fast as the movie moves, and we really wanted it to feel fast, we wanted it to feel like an Elmore Leonard novel.

'The First Purge' director on America's purging past and present

"In real life, there's purging going on."

matthew.juul@metro.us

The popular "Purge" horror-film series offers a dystopic view of a possible American future, where citizens are allowed to commit crimes as heinous as murder for 12 hours during a yearly ritual of legalized mayhem, meant to curb people's aggressions. "The First Purge," which debuted July 4, shows fans how this social experiment gone wrong found its beginnings, but the idea of a purge isn't exactly a new one for the real United States.

While the actual U.S. government hasn't sanctioned an annual holiday of lawlessness (yet), according to director Gerard McMurray, the country has flirted with the concept in other ways throughout its history — and even in its present. At the core of purging is the belief that some people, particularly the rich and powerful, are allowed to steal, harm and maim others with impunity under the guise of civic duty. This sounds eerily familiar to how some can justify lynching, police violence or horrific moments like the destruction of Tulsa's Black Wall Street in 1921 or the bombing of a black Philadelphia neighborhood by police in 1985, all done under claims of patriotism or a yearning to cleanse the country.

"The history of this country, there's always been some form of a purge in some sense," says McMurray. "But, we've come a long way in this country and people have really come together. I think that we've come far enough in this country where we can talk about these things."

Although McMurray believes the U.S. has changed for the better over the years, he did draw inspiration from our current politically divisive times when crafting "The First Purge." Aside from several sly references to Donald Trump, McMurray tried to bring the real-life horrors that many people, especially black Americans, face today to the world of the "Purge."

In particular, last year's attack in Charlottesville had a significant impact on McMurray as he made the prequel, which is why the film showcases elements of protestors resisting the purge juxtaposed against images of murderous, hooded white supremacists taking to the streets. "The First Purge" is even told through the perspective of young black protagonists who must combat these violent racists, armed by a government that'd rather eradicate communities of color than provide them with the resources they need.

Despite the heavy themes, McMurray adamantly explains that "The First Purge" is meant to be a fun, horror movie experience for audiences. "I wanted to make it real as I can within the first movies, but also at the end of the day, this is not real, this is alternate reality," he says, "This is a fun film and people should not take it literally."

"The First Purge" is now in theaters.

Meet the real Tevye

Fiddler on the Roof enjoyed a year-long revival on Broadway in 2016. But it was a rosy adaptation of Sholem Aleichem's stories, which are getting a more faithful adaptation off-Broadway with Tevye Served Raw. GETTY IMAGES

Fiddler on the Roof was a glossy musical version of Sholem Aleichem's stories. Tevye Served Raw is the real deal, now playing off-Broadway.

letters@metro.us

You probably know Tevye, the father torn between tradition and his daughters' happiness, from the hugely successful Broadway musical Fiddler on the Roof. But the show was only a snapshot in the life of a man created by Sholem Aleichem, who wrote several stories starring him — and there are many more surprises in the new Off-Broadway play Tevye Served Raw. “Fiddler was Broadway-ized and made safe for its time,” says Allen Lewis Rickman, the director, translator and star of Tevye Served Raw, which begins performances on July 5 at The Playroom Theatre.

“The original stories are more authentic and were about what life was like in tsarist Russia. These stories parallel with Fiddler, but are very different. Half are dramatic, and the other half straight comic — Aleichem was a brilliant humorist.”

Aleichem's stories about life in the shtetl, a Yiddish community in Russia during the 1800s, were most famously adapted into the 1964 musical, Fiddler on the Roof, which won nine Tony Awards and remains the 16th longest-running Broadway show of all time.

Tevye Served Raw is not a sequel. It's the unvarnished version of Fiddler, adapting five Tevye stories and offering a more honest depiction of life in the shtetl as well as the rich humor that runs through Aleichem's work.

The production stars Rickman and his real-life partner, Yelena Shmulenson, who you might know as the Yiddish-speaking couple from the Coen brothers' A Serious Man, and Shane Baker.

Rickman, whose credits include a recurring role on Boardwalk Empire, also translated the Yiddish text into English (there are also Yiddish-English supertitles), which ended up being the hardest part.

“He wrote ripe colorful characters but also the stories have the joy of the language: rich, flavorful words and a great atmosphere,” he says.

“The original Yiddish has so much color and musicality. It's hard to keep the inflections and keep the meaning but it works well. We all speak Yiddish and have that musicality between us.”

The timing of the off-Broadway debut couldn't be more relevant, according to Rickman, as audiences take a second look at the original work and hear a less homogenized story.

“These are authentic stories and the word I would use to best describe them is ‘raw.’ Fiddler was written by modern Americans. They grew up here in a less hostile civilization. In tsarist Russia, two different civilizations were living side-by-side and the life of Jews was the equivalent to black Americans in the Jim Crow South.

Governors Island
now open late on Saturday nights

Governors Island is angling to be your new late-night hangout. First, Friday night ferry service was extended through 10 p.m. on Memorial Day Weekend for the rest of the summer, and beginning July 7 they're doing the same on Saturday nights — all the way until 11 p.m.

You've got Grey Goose to thank for sponsoring the late-night ferry service. It actually began the first weekend of June, but the only venue remaining open was Island Oyster, the chic outdoor cocktails-and-oysters waterfront bar facing Lower Manhattan, where you can toast with a special Grey Goose Fair Winds Fizz cocktail.

As of July 7, you'll have access to the rest of the island, too. Several of the food and drink vendors at Liggett Terrace and Soissons Landing East have also added late hours, and you'll be able to pedal rental bikes minus the usual pedestrian traffic around the peaceful Hills and among the island's historic homes.

These new late nights run through Sept. 1 on Saturdays and through Sept. 14 on Fridays. To get to Governors Island, you'll have to make the 8 minute journey by ferry from Manhattan's Battery Maritime building (10 South Street). Grey Goose is even waiving the usual $3 round-trip fee for the ferry, providing free departures at 6:30 p.m., 7:30 p.m., 8:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Return trips are on the hour from 8 p.m. until 11 p.m.

Even before it became a late-night hangout, 2018 has already been a big year for Governors Island. They're hosting not one but two giant public artworks by Jacob Hashimoto, opened an all-weather “ice” skating rink with a taco stand right on the harbor, created a glamping site and started their first-ever monthly outdoor movie nights (the next screening is Desperately Seeking Susan on Tuesday, July 13). ## A beach relic gets new life

After reinvigorating Jacob Riis Park with their Beach Bazaar, the Brooklyn Bazaar crew have given the nearby Jacob Riis Bathhouse the same treatment. The beachside marvel of Art Deco architecture has been abandoned for decades, but now it hosts local food vendors including Musser's Famous Crab Cakes and Ample Hills. Expect live music, too. The pavilion also has a video arcade, a small shop for beach essentials and chair/umbrella rentals, outdoor beer garden and glamping facilities by Camp Rockaway.

Opens July 4 at 157 Rockaway Beach Blvd. To get there, take the 2 or 5 to the end of the line then hop on a Q35 bus, or the A to a Q22 bus. The Causeway Coast.

Get lost along Northern Ireland's Causeway Coastal Route

Sometimes a pleasant drive is the best way to explore.

patrick.king@metro.us

It's easy to get wrapped up in Northern Ireland's incredible cities, but sometimes it takes getting behind the wheel and venturing out to really get an idea of what this beautiful region has to offer. Known as one of the world's great road trips, the Causeway Coastal Route starts in the vibrant city of Belfast and finishes in the walled city of Derry-Londonderry, offering 154 miles of stunning scenery, incredible food and epic experiences you won't want to miss. Here are some can't-miss experiences along Northern Ireland's Causeway Coastal Route.

Highlights of the Causeway Coastal Route

While there are many unforgettable attractions along the route, the Giant's Causeway — known as the eighth wonder of the world — is a vision that's sure to stay with you for a lifetime. This official UNESCO World Heritage Site comprising 40,000 hexagonal stone columns that blanket the landscape and disappear into the ocean like steppingstones to a lost world. According to science, this whimsical landscape was created 60 million years ago as a result of intense volcanic activity; however, the local legend of warring giants is a lot more fun!

Just a 10-minute drive from the Giant's Causeway is Dunluce Castle, one of the island's most breathtaking structures. Built in the 14th century, the castle sits on the cliff's edge so you can take in the awe-inspiring views of the coastline while surrounded by some of Northern Ireland's deep-rooted history.

Speaking of breathtaking views, nothing can quite compare with the jaw-dropping Carrick-a-Rede rope bridge, which swings and sways 98 feet over the sea between Northern Ireland's mainland and Carrick-a-Rede Island. Crossing is an exhilarating experience, with the bridge lightly bouncing with every step and the ocean crashing below. Those brave enough to cross will be treated to magnificent, 360-degree views of the most picturesque areas in all of Northern Ireland.

Work on your golf game

Northern Ireland is a golfer's paradise, and the stunning backdrops of the Causeway Coastal Route provide the perfect setting for a round of golf. Royal Portrush Golf Club is set to host the 148th Open in 2019, where the winner will need to overcome the course's towering dunes and sweeping valleys.

Travelling along the Causeway Coast will bring you to another epic course, Portstewart Golf Club — one of Northern Ireland's hidden gems. Not to be outdone is the course Golf Digest saw fit to name 2017's No. 1 in the world: Royal County Down, which has played host to the Irish Open, the Walker Cup and the Curtis Cup.

Food and drink along the coast

The Causeway Coastal Route is perfect for foodies and whiskey lovers alike. Located in the charming village of Bushmills, the Old Bushmills Distillery is the oldest and one of the most renowned whiskey distilleries in Ireland. Originally granted a license by King James I, the distillery opened in 1608 and has been delivering the goods ever since. Once you've sipped and sampled some of the distillery's finest, get your fill of fresh seafood from Harry's Shack. This incredible eatery right on Portstewart Strand serves culinary favorites straight from tide to table, but if it's an array of local delicacies you'd like to sample, then be sure not to miss the Ballycastle Food Tour, where you can delight in favorites from hand-made scones to freshly shucked local oysters.

Live out your ultimate "Game of Thrones" fantasy

The eighth and final season of HBO's Game of Thrones® airs next year, but as home to more Seven Kingdoms locations than anywhere else in the world (26 to be exact); Northern Ireland has truly earned its title as "Game of Thrones" territory. Fans of the famous George R.R. Martin books and the wildly popular HBO show will be thrilled to know that you can explore the real-world Westeros by touring actual filming locations such as Ballintoy Harbor, otherwise known as Pyke — home of the Ironborn. Or follow in Arya's footsteps and stride down the Kingroad, underneath the twisting trunks of the 200-year-old beach trees that create what's known as the "Dark Hedges."

Get out of the city and cool off this summer.

With the heat wave hitting the East Coast, it can feel like your brain is swelling every time you step outside. Even though cities can come alive when the warm weather hits, sometimes you just need to find that perfect swimming spot to bring your body temperature down even for just an afternoon. Here are some of the best water parks on East Coast.

Enchanted Forest Water Safari

Old Forge, New York
Located in the North West region of the Adirondack Mountains in the town of Old Forge — Enchanted Forest Water Safari is New York's largest water park, with 32 water slides to choose from. When you're done going down slides like "The Shadow" and the "Killermanjaro," you can fight back massive manmade waves in the quarter-acre Tidal Wave Pool. Tickets for adults are $35 while children's passes will cost $30. However, if you are considering visiting multiple times this summer, consider a season pass, which is $95.

Water Wizz

East Wareham, Massachusetts
If you've seen the movies "The Way Way Back" or "Grown Ups," then you've seen some of what East Wareham, Massachusetts' Water Wizz has to offer. Rest assured, there is much more. Slide down in complete darkness with the Pirate's Plunge water slide and take a tube through the winding six story high slide The Canal at Southern New England's largest water park. Tickets are $37 a person, but if you want to really enjoy the park in style you can rent a private cabana as your home base for $50 a day or a VIP option for $75 per day.

HersheyPark

HersheyPark
HersheyPark in Hershey, Pennsylvania is not only one of the best water parks on the East Coast but one of the best theme parks you'll be able to find. Its 11-acre water park is full of fun and surprises including the high-speed open air “Breakers Edge Water Coaster” and the tube-tacular “Coastline Plunge.” Access to the entire park — including the water park — is $53 for adults and $45 for children and seniors. If you are planning to visit for the weekend, two-day passes are $85 for adults and $66 for children and seniors.

Pump House Indoor Waterpark

Jay, Vermont
Planning a trip up to Jay Peak usually revolves around taking advantage of the fresh powder and winding trails of this world renowned ski resort. But what you may not know is that this mountain is also home to one of the best water parks on the East Coast — Pump House Indoor Water Park. Featuring it's massive 65-foot slide "Le Chute" and its winding "Big River," this indoor park has everything thrill seeking kids and chilled out parents could ask for. Full-day adult passes will run you $40 and full day children's passes are $30 so it is definitely worth the trip.

OPINION

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno

The astronomical fall from grace is complete for the New York Mets even though rock bottom has seemingly been met on multiple occasions over the last two years.

Just three years ago, the Mets were slated to become a consistent force in Major League Baseball.

Behind a young, dominant pitching staff that included Jacob deGrom, Noah Syndergaard, Matt Harvey, Steven Matz and Zach Wheeler, it wasn't too farfetched to think that the Mets could challenge for the National League East for at least the next few seasons after making a magical run to the 2015 World Series. Especially after securing Yoenis Cespedes on a four-year deal.

But then the Mets, as only the Mets could do, began to... Mets. I know, that's a confusing sentence but baseball fans know exactly what I'm talking about.

Injuries wiped out any chance of the five promising pitchers being featured in the same starting rotation for an extended period of time as every single one of those starters spent a considerable amount of time on the disabled list since 2015.

They continued to act like a small-market franchise despite competing in New York with the powerhouse Yankees. Fueled by ownership's miserly tendencies and all-around lack of knowledge of how to run a winning team, the Mets refused to go after big names and clear upgrades for a team that has plenty of holes.

Yet they still made the National League Wild Card Game in 2016, just the second time in franchise history they made the playoffs two-straight years.

Mets fans celebrated the fact that they made the playoffs two years in a row.

That's how mediocre this franchise is. That's how inept of owners the Wilpons are.

Things have come crashing back down to Earth for the franchise since the start of the 2017 season. Which is a return to normalcy if we're being honest.

Following a 70-92 campaign last year, the Mets have the least amount of wins in baseball as of July 4 despite starting the season 11-1.

Matz and Wheeler have battled inconsistencies after overcoming a litany of injury issues. Syndergaard is also battling a finger problem that has held him out since May 25 after it was forecasted as a minor setback.

Jason Vargas, brought on to bolster the rotation should injuries strike, has proven to be a disaster of a signing as a calf injury mercifully put a 2-6, 8.60 ERA campaign on hold.

Cespedes has played in just 118 games since the start of the 2017 season. That's on pace for 59 games per year which is in no way deserving of that $110 million he will receive over the life of his contract that will expire at the end of the 2019 season.

This, of course, could somehow justify the cheap skate Wilpons' reasoning as to why they don't spend money on quality players, by the way.

Instead, they've trotted out over-the-hill veterans like Adrian Gonzalez, Jose Bautista, Jose Reyes and Vargas this year, all of whom are over the age of 35. Then again, that also has something to do with the shortcomings that first-year manager Mickey Callaway has shown throughout his first half season as a big-league boss.

Don't forget the franchise's inability to develop its best non-pitching prospects. Shortstop Amed Rosario, one of baseball's most highly-touted talents a year ago is batting just .245 this year. First baseman Dominic Smith, the team's second-best prospect, has a career batting average of .202 in 67 games.

The farm system is basically barren as Tim Lincecum is making more news in double-A than promising first-base prospect Peter Alonso, who should be in the big leagues at this point.

And now here are the Mets, their season already over in early July as fans brace for a firesale and the dreaded word, "rebuild."

With the recent sobering news of general manager Sandy Alderson's health that saw him take an immediate leave of absence last week, assistant GM John Ricco has already made it known that the Mets will listen to trade offers on both deGrom and Syndergaard.

Even with Syndergaard injured, the two righties are two of the only salvageable things about this trainwreck of a franchise.

DeGrom should be a favorite for the National League Cy Young Award if he had any semblance of support. Despite an MLB-best 1.84 ERA, the 30-year-old is just 5-4 on the season.

That's embarrassing. And he's annoyed.

Following a 5-2 loss to the Marlins, deGrom even admitted that he was "frustrated" and "tired of losing."

There will surely be countless Mets fans pleading for management to hold on to deGrom and Syndergaard and I completely get that. You're facing the possibility of Don't end with just them, though. Once he's healthy, see if anyone wants Cespedes for a year and a half. Get rid of Jay Bruce, Asdrubal Cabrera, anything that can provide a return of something.

Clean house in the minor leagues, get a new development staff in where promising talent can meet their actual potential. And in the process of cleaning out the MLB roster, those trades could bring in a bevy of youngsters that can move this organization in the right direction in a year or two.

Let's be honest, the Wilpons aren't going to sell the team no matter how much people yell and scream about it. This is the cheap way to bring some hope to a franchise that has none of it, which is right up this shameful ownership's alley.

The Top 5 'Most American'

Sports has always had a way of bringing Americans together.

MARK LELINWALLA

While celebrating our nation's independence this week, Metro thinks it's only right to look back at the Top 5 Most American Sports Moments in history.

WHITNEY HOUSTON'S ANTHEM

that Arista Records subsequently released it as a single and video due to public demand. The timing of the deceased Houston's glowing, beautiful voice singing the National Anthem coincided with the start of the Gulf War, making it all the more memorable and touching. More than 27 years later and Houston's stirring rendition of the song still stands the test of time.

BRANDI CHASTAIN'S GOAL

4 Absolute euphoria. That's the best way to describe the way Brandi Chastain felt scoring a penalty shootout goal against China to win the 1999 FIFA Women's World Cup final at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California. After scoring the electric goal, an elated Chastain removed her U.S. jersey and threw her arms in the air in celebration, wearing only a sports bra in an image that was immortalized on the cover of Sports Illustrated. Awesome.

JESSE OWENS BLASTS HITLER

3 Hitler wanted to use the 1936 Summer Olympics in Berlin as a global platform to flex Nazi Germany's muscle. Well, as a Black man, Jesse Owens shattered that attempt, winning four gold medals: long jump, 100 meters, 200 meters and 4 x 100-meter relay. It's American sports dominance that will never be forgotten.

PIAZZA'S POST-9/11 HOMER

2 It was 10 days since 9/11, the most horrific terrorist attack on U.S. soil, when New York hosted this sporting event. The New York Mets were hosting the Atlanta Braves that night, Sept. 21, at Shea Stadium, with the crowd — and country — looking for a brief escape and to get back into the swing of normal, everyday life. The Mets' then-catcher, Mike Piazza, provided both by hitting an eighth-inning home run, which paved the way for the team to win and for New York City to crack a much-needed smile.

Piazza's memorable homer from that game is one of the post-9/11 moments included in the National September 11 Memorial and Museum's new exhibit, which documents how sports helped the country heal following the terrorist attacks. Another moment included is then-president George W. Bush throwing the first pitch at Yankee Stadium before Game 3 of the 2001 World Series.

MIRACLE ON ICE

I On one side, it was the Soviet Union, winners of five of the past six Winter Olympic men's ice hockey gold medals with a squad consisting of mostly professional players. On the other side, it was all-amateur players representing the Americans. The Soviet Union demolishing the U.S. 10-3 in an exhibition game, just days before the 1980 Winter Olympics began, made the Americans that much more of an underdog against its Cold War rival. That being said, the U.S. was somehow able to rally from a 3-2 third-period deficit to score two unanswered goals and shock the Soviets with a 4-3 upset in the semifinals. That prompted sports broadcaster Al Michaels's iconic call, "Do you believe in miracles?

Yes!" The U.S. went on to capture the gold medal by defeating Finland in the final. The fact that those Olympics were on U.S. soil (Lake Placid, NY) made the monumental upset all the more patriotic.
